ABOUT ME

Computer Science student and AI Engineer with 2+ years of commercial experience in Computer Vision and Data Analysis. Proven track record in hardware-software integration (ESA CanSat winner) and game development (Godot/C++). I operate as a freelance contractor (B2B) seeking part-time, high-impact engineering challenges. I focus on shipping production-grade code, not just academic theory.

PROJECTS

[01/09/2020 – 30/06/2022]

ESA CanSat Competition, The European Space Company

In the CanSat competition, a team must create a satellite the size of a tin to measure certain data. At some distance from the ground, it is launched and dropped by parachute to collect certain data, which is then processed and put into context of entire mission.

In International round we were placed at 1. place and we advance to the European round. We experienced a week in Bologna, Italy, where we meet teams from 25 other countries. I code and construct the main hardware and communication between satellite.

I was a Lead Engineer who designed and implemented C++ flight software for satellite telemetry and ground station communication. Handled hardware and software logic for real-time data capture.

POJSpace

I founded a high-school student technology community to facilitate peer-to-peer learning using school infrastructure. Successfully negotiated a dedicated hardware lab/makerspace with independent network infrastructure.

Technical Mentorship: Designed and delivered a semester-long curriculum on Artificial Intelligence and Neural Networks.

Event Organization: Led Game Development teams and organized competitive hackathons to foster engineering skills.

Sustainability: Handing over leadership to ensure the community remains active and productive post-graduation.
